COMMENT FROM THE CEO:

FOCUSED ON GROWTH

G5 is a growth company at heart. We are determined to give our customers around the world high-quality, exciting games and to build lasting relationships with them. We know from experience the third quarter is one of the two weaker quarters of a year. It is challenging for us because of slower player activity, but also because we need to make an important choice. We can focus on maintaining profitability by being more conservative on marketing spending or we can prepare for a seasonally strong fourth quarter by boosting our investment in bringing new players to our games earlier. This third quarter we opted to give a boost to our older game portfolio, while also giving our new game Jewels of Rome the best shot at even greater success for the last few months of the year.

This meant an aggressive investment in marketing in the third quarter to lift revenue in the fourth quarter. We also decided it was a good time to explore new marketing approaches and to continue working with the growth strategies we tested in the second quarter, which demand greater investment in order to maximize the games' potential and increase sales. We are confident this investment will lead to greater user spending and returns over time

The market for acquiring users is however more challenging and requires a new level of sophistication in order to be effective. The average cost of acquiring users continues to go up and it puts pressure on games with lower lifetime customer value (LTV) as acquiring for these games becomes more difficult and not as scalable. Our strategy is to invest in improving our tools, while optimizing and streamlining our processes and systems. We also continue redirecting our teams to invest in our future portfolio by creating new, higher LTV games like Jewels of Rome. We also want to introduce advertising monetization into our games in the near future to receive our share of revenue of the growing mobile advertising market and increase our profitability.

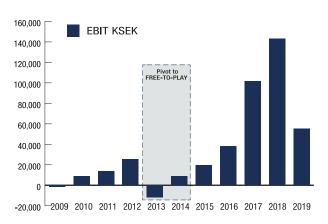

In the meantime, during this growth investment phase, we may spend more on user acquisition while we are achieving the goal of growing sequentially into increasing profitability over time. The company has the reserves necessary and the management is committed to running the company sustainably and managing fixed expenses. G5 has the capacity to evolve existing games for growth and develop new, exciting games. We also have the financial flexibility to adjust user acquisition to best take advantage of opportunities when they pop up.

On the development front, during the quarter we continued reallocating our game development talent from games that are not delivering growth to new games that can become new growth points like Jewels of Rome. Over the past year we stopped work or substantially reduced the team on seven games that were not growing for an extended period of time, allowing us to focus energy on launching new games with the existing development teams.

REVENUE KSEK

We still have two new games that we aim to release before the end of the year, or in the first quarter 2020. One is a hidden object game and one in the Match-3 genre. In addition to these two games, we have five new games in the pipeline for release in 2020, some in hidden object, some in Match-3, and one in an entirely new genre for the company. I'm excited to see how our pipeline is shaping up.

RESULTS FOR THE QUARTER

Revenue for the third quarter increased by one percent compared to the second quarter. Revenues from Hidden City and Mahjong Journey stabilized. The share of revenue from own games continued to go up and now makes up a whopping 40 percent of G5's business. Our newly released game, Jewels of Rome, went from zero to the second-largest game in our portfolio by monthly revenue in just a few months, setting a record for an internally developed game. In summary, the licensed portfolio declined slightly, while our own games grew a healthy 13 percent, primarily driven by Jewels of Rome. It's great to see Jewels of Rome gain such traction so quickly.

In total, our growth plans and increased spending weighed on our margins in the quarter, which came in at -0.9 percent. Our plans to bring in new users is already showing progress. The fourth quarter looks promising with October seeing double-digit sequential growth compared to September.

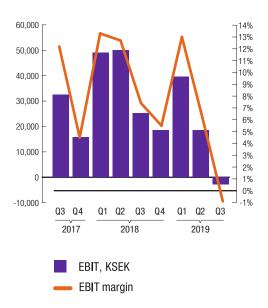

We are in an investment phase, both when it comes to creating our future games, but also with expanding our audience. We are making these investments from a position of strength and we remain in a good financial position, fully capable of meeting all our investment needs in development and marketing. We continue to enjoy stable revenue streams from our largest games, while also investing in scaling the success of newer games like Homicide Squad and Jewels of Rome and developing more exciting titles.

FINANCIAL POSITION

The company's publishing strategy is based on having a certain number of different games in the portfolio, in order to maximize potential and reduce risk. Some of these games become very successful and extremely profitable, a good portion of these games do not become big breakthroughs but pay for themselves and are stable earners over a long period of time, while a few other games may fail in the market. Capitalized development expenses for unsuccessful games will then have to be written down. Over time, the company expects such write-downs to be more than compensated for by the revenue and profits produced by successful games in the portfolio.

Capitalized development expenses amounted to SEK 224.1 M (186.2). The company separates released and not released games where not released games include games that have been active in the app stores for less than 6 months. During the initial 6 month period after launch, the company does not amortize the games.

PARENT COMPANY

The parent company revenue decreased in line with the group. The parent company is the counterpart for all application stores where G5 sells its products. The costs consist mainly of payments to one of the subsidiaries in Malta, that holds the rights for the games in the portfolio and is also where the senior management overseeing the games, licensing, HR etc. is based. Over time, the transactions should generate a surplus for the parent company, but during shorter periods some imbalances may occur.

As for the group, the financial position of the parent company is solid.
